Intermarriage A Minority Report

By ISAAC GOLDBERG

I refuse to be perturbed over the wedding of Yehudi Menuhin to a non-Jewess. That's as much his business as the music he plays and the instrument upon which he plays it. If there is any circumstance that should be free from interference by the rest of one's fellow human beings, that circumstance is marriage. We have a right to protect ourselves from the offspring of mental and venereal defects—yes. But we have no right to enforce prejudices, even if those prejudices are Jewish prejudices.

Toscanini, I suppose, in any case would have revealed himself as a man of culture and humaneness. The fact that his wife is a Jewess, however, must have given pith and point to his determined stand against the imbecilic brutality of Hitler, and Berlin's pseudo—"Aryan" gang. Intermarriage helps often to break down barriers of mind. It is by no means an unmitigated evil. If we are all the children of the same God, why this truculent determination to keep apart?

A Good Thing.

I am not advocating intermarriage. I simply insist that marriage is the private concern of those who marry. Neither am I opposing intermarriage. In fact, if you pinned me right down to a statement, I should say that it is, on the whole, a good thing. Nor have I the Jews alone in mind. In fact, for the moment I am not thinking of them at all. Brotherhood-of-man is a nice term. Also, it is harmless until somebody shows that he takes it seriously. Then he becomes a social menace. Well, I take it seriously.

I don't have to tell you that not many hundred years ago it was, in some places, difficult to get a Sephardic Jew to an Ashkenazi. Talk about brotherhood-of-man! Even the Jews weren't brothers! And are they altogether fraternal today?

I am forever being told that "Intermarriage did no good in Germany." Such a statement arises from a misunderstanding. The purpose of intermarriage is to make two people happy. It is not meant to prevent Hitler from robbing Jews. To me, nevertheless, it was exalting to discover how many non-Jewish spouses, given an opportunity to abandon their Jewish mates, chose rather to accompany them into exile. Every time that love refuses to recognize a barrier, it is a victory for the human spirit.

Mazel Tov, Yehudi.

Even today, the mis-government of Germany has to use compulsion upon its unfortunate citizens to keep them from patronizing, and fraternizing with, Jews. Even today, after five years of intensive hate-breeding . . . It was the same in Czaristic Russia, when Jew-hatred was used similarly as politico-economic camouflage. Peoples do not normally hate. The hatred must be artificially stimulated, just as war fevers must be artificially induced.

So, Mazel Tov, Mr. Yehudi Menuhin! And Mazel Tov to your wife! And Mazel Tov, for a change, to those qualities that unite mankind rather than separate it into self-righteous, narcissistic, jingoistic divisions.

Big Four Meets In N. Y. To Unite Defense Actions

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—An organization to coordinate the Jewish defense activities of American Jewry's four major bodies has been established, with Edgar J. Kaufman of Pittsburgh as temporary chairman, which took its first official step by sending a cable of greeting to Myron C. Taylor, American delegate at the Evian refugee-aid conference.

"The American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, the B'nai B'rith and the Jewish Labor Committee, at a joint meeting of representatives of their respective organizations held in New York on July 7, take notice of the inter-governmental conference now being held at Evian-les-Bains, France, and wish it success in finding an effective and speedy solution of the refugee problem, in which the whole world is deeply concerned," the message said.

The meeting, which was held at the Hotel St. Regis with 19 representatives of the four organizations attending, and Mr. Kaufman presiding, discussed an organization plan and appointed various committees, which will report at a meeting to be held on August 1. The organization was formed under the Pittsburgh Jewish unity agreement.

Cantor Arrives In London Turns In Girl's Ten Cents

Special

NEW YORK—Little Lorraine Neft, of Elizabeth, N. J., is the recipient today of a hearty "thank you" from Eddie Cantor, well-known radio and screen star for a much-traveled dime which she sent the actor "to help the unfortunate Jewish children of Europe."

Mr. Cantor arrived July 11 in London to attempt to raise $100,000 for the Youth Aliyah (immigration) movement which transfers Jewish children from Germany, Austria and Poland to Palestine.

Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, sole agency in this country for Youth Aliyah reported Lorraine's contribution, revealing that Mr. Cantor sprinted to the national headquarters of the organization in this city a few hours before sailing on the Queen Mary to add the dime to the $87,000 he has already raised for the movement. He had carried it in a special envelope from Hollywood.

Four weeks ago Lorraine heard of Mr. Cantor's work for Jewish children in Europe and was anxious to contribute her mite to what she considered a good cause. In no way nonplussed by the tens of thousands of dollars other Ameri-

Slobodin Gives Bird's Eye View Of Fierce Battle

By ROMAN SLOBODIN
(J. T. A. Staff Correspondent)

HAIFA—This city was an armed camp as Arabs and Jews buried 23 dead, the toll in a 30-minute pitched battle which had transformed a new business center into a shambles resembling Shanghai and Madrid. Five more deaths were added when four Arabs wounded earlier died and a Jew was killed by Arabs who fired into a party of Jews walking near the Bourge, a mixed quarter.

As this correspondent watched from a window in busy, modern King's Way the clash developed into the greatest holocaust since the beginning of the Arab rebellion in 1936. When troops and police had succeeded in restoring order, with curfew and bullets, Arabs counted 18 dead and 60 wounded. Jews five dead and more than a score wounded. Arab funerals were held at four o'clock in the morning, with the Jewish burials an hour later.

The entire action lasted but 30 minutes, starting at 6:10 p.m., with the terrible explosion of a bomb that had been hurled into the municipal vegetable market. The explosion produced a majority of the Arab casualties, while shots, knives and stones accounted for most of the Jewish dead and wounded.

The bombing was followed by a barrage of stones laid down by Arabs against a Jewish-owned bus, whose driver replied with shots from his licensed revolver. Guns appeared from everywhere and the battle was joined, with Arab police adding to the confusion and terror by firing rifles and machine guns wildly into homebound crowds. Thousands of office workers watched from nearby windows as the battle unfolded. Shrieks of women spectators mingled with the whine of bullets and the cries of the wounded.

Jewish and Government ambulances rushed the wounded to hospitals as hundreds of troops and police occupied the streets, driving the crowds home under the quickly-imposed curfew.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO BENJAMIN CARDOZO REICH TO PERMIT 10 PER CENT CAPITAL EXODUS

Nation Mourns The Passing Of Jewish Justice

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
PORT CHESTER, N. Y.—The entire nation mourned this week the passing of Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, America's leading legal scholar and Jewish associate justice of the United States Supreme Court since 1932, who succumbed Saturday night to a heart attack while recuperating from a long illness at the Port Chester estate of Judge Irving Lehman. He was 68 years old on May 24.

Leaders in all walks of life, headed by President Roosevelt, voiced their grief at his death and paid warm tribute to the jurist's genius and personality.

"The news of the passing of Justice Cardozo," Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement issued in Oklahoma City, where he is on a political tour, "came to me as a great personal shock. Years ago, when he was Chief Justice of the high court of New York, I learned to admire and to love him. He had a great soul. The whole nation has lost a constant friend." Others who paid tribute included Governor Herbert H. Lehman, associate justice on the Supreme Court, cabinet members, senators and leaders of Jewish organizations.

Present at his bedside when he died were Judge Lehman and Justice Cardozo's secretary, Joseph Rauh. The jurist, conscious to the last, passed away quietly, without speaking.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Lehman estate, with the Rev. D. A. Jessurun Cardozo, assistant minister of the Congregation Shearith Israel of New York, officiating. Rabbi Cardozo is not related to the jurist. Burial was in the Cardozo family plot in the congregation's cemetery at Cypress Hills, L. I.

Surviving relatives include Miss Addie Cardozo, Henry J. Hendricks and Edgar J. Nathan, Jr., all of whom were on the way to his bedside from New York City when he died; Mrs. Annie Nathan Meyer, one of the founders of Barnard College, and Maud Nathan.

Justice Cardozo, who was unmarried, was taken ill with a heart ailment last December and had since been away from the bench. He was appointed to the nation's highest tribunal by President Herbert Hoover, who named him in 1933. His appointment was approved by the Senate without a dissenting vote. He came to the high court from the New York Court of Appeals, of which he was Chief Justice.

Although never active in Jewish organizational work, Justice Cardozo was known to be keenly interested in all matters affecting his coreligionists. Born in New York City on May 24, 1870, he was descended from two distinguished

Solution Demanded

VIENNA—Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi Party leader, warned the Evian conference that other European lands verged on doing to the Jews what Germany had already done, and the conference had best strive for a permanent and wide solution of the Jewish question. He wrote in Chancellor Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter.

The hope that 1,000 Austrian Jews could be sent to Palestine in the coming two months was expressed by Aaron Schapiro, of the immigration department of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, who has arrived here with 60 entry certificates for the most urgent cases.

Exchange Germans For Jews Is Suggestion

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—Wickman Steed, noted journalist, proposes that the United States and all "civilized nations" in Europe return one "Aryan" German to Germany for every Jew that country expels and plunders.

Addressing an all-party meeting at Friends House, the former Times editor said: "The Jews have outlived oppressors in the past and will outlive their present trials. There is one thing that could be done and that is, for every Jew sent away and robbed by Germany, the civilized nations in Europe, and the United States, should send one 'Aryan' German to Germany, deducting from his wealth the proportion needed to help the Jewish destitute. How long will free, civilized men and women go on sitting and watching helplessly the greatest abomination of the twentieth century?"

Jewish families. His mother, Rebecca Washington Nathan, was a descendant of Rabbi Gershon Sexias, a Sephardic Jew who came to this country from Portugal in 1654 and became one of the first trustees of Kings College, later Columbia University. Two members of this family played active roles in the American Revolution.

"I do not know how it will all end," Justice Cardozo once summed up his own life. "I know that it has been an interesting time to live in, an interesting time in which to do my little share of translating into law the social and economic forces that throb and clamor for expression."

Evian Hears Plan Of Transfer Agreement

By BORIS SMOLAR
(Chief European Correspondent, J. T. A.)

EVIAN-LES-BAINS — Indirect but apparently authentic information was received from Berlin this week to the effect that the German Government is willing to permit Jews to take ten per cent of their capital with them when emigrating provided the conference maps out a plan for emigration of German Jewry within five years. The conference ended Friday after ten days of intensive sessions.

The money ostensibly would be taken out of Germany under the terms of a transfer agreement between the Reich and the various countries of destination. A Jewish delegation from Germany has submitted a memorandum pointing out that of 500,000 Austrians and German Jews, 200,000 were of an age useful as emigrants. The memorandum suggests that provisions be made for emigration of the 200,000 within six years and that an emigrant bank be created for the clearing of Jewish capital that can be taken out of Germany.

Most of the delegations were optimistic about its outcome of the conference. They make the reservation, however, that a prominent American must head the proposed intergovernmental bureau to be set up as a permanent body to handle the refugee problem. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State in President Hoover's administration, was among the names most frequently mentioned in this connection.

Syracuse Mayor Balks Effort To Line Up Against Jews

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—An effort to win Republican Party leaders throughout the nation to a campaign of anti-Semitism hit a stone wall in Syracuse this week when Mayor Rolland B. Marvin threw a

Mayor Marvin revealed to this correspondent that he had received a letter from Lieutenant-General V. Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co., Protests Malicious Rumors

Indianapolis cigarette retailers this week received a circular and carbon copies of several messages from the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co., makers of Chesterfield cigarettes, vigorously attacking the malicious rumors that it had made a contribution to the Nazi party.

Aroused by the rumor that it had contributed funds to the Nazi Party, a malicious lie which was squelched several years ago, but which continues to crop up at intervals, the tobacco firm mailed letters to retailers throughout the nation. One letter to the Anti-Nazi League, declared that "Neither this company nor any of its officials has at any time, directly or indirectly, made any contribution of any kind to any Nazi organization either in this country or abroad.

The two other messages were a telegram from Boake Carter denying that he had ever been "responsible for any statement whatsoever connecting your company, Chesterfield cigarettes or any other product of yours with the Nazi movement", and a letter from Walter Winchell carrying the same denial.

A reward of $25,000 was offered on the circular for persons who "will furnish us satisfactory evidence as to the person or persons who are circulating or paying others to circulate these false and malicious rumors".

Has Life-Time Batting Average Of Over .300; Aid In Pennant Drive

By SEYMOUR PINKUS

You fans that have been out to see those hustling Indianapolis Indians lately, no doubt have noticed the dark-haired, husky athlete patrolling left field. That's Milt Galatzer, much-traveled Jewish athlete.

Born and raised on Chicago's West side in the heart of the Jewish district, he started to knock the peeling off the apple in games on local playgrounds. "Milt sure smacks 'em," the gang would say. At the Jewish People's Institute where as a member he spent a great deal of time, he was known not only for his baseball ability, but for basketball skill as well.

Milt broke into organized baseball in 1930 with Frederick, Md., in the Blue Ridge league, a class D circuit. After the end of the season he was called to Terre Haute in the Three-I league where he played through the 1931 season. It was here that he became acquainted with Phil Weintraub, another Hebrew boy, who at the time was playing with Ducky Holmes' Dayton ball club. Phil is now up in the big time with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Galatzer's powerful hitting and fleet-footedness attracted the attention of the Cleveland Indians who shipped him to New Orleans for further seasoning and thence to Toledo in the American Association. In June, 1933, he went up to the majors with the Clevelanders for a short spell and then spent the rest of that campaign with the Mud Hens. Milt played with the Cleveland Club from 1934 to 1936 when he was again sent to New Orleans in '37 he cavorted in the field for Los Angeles for a few short months and then came to Indianapolis where he has become, in

CITY RAILWAYS TO DEDICATE NEW SHOPS, BUILDINGS

Monday, July 18th, will be a red letter day in the history of Indianapolis Railways.

On that date the local transit firm will mark the official completion of its modernization program and, at the same time, will dedicate its new layout of shops, garage, transportation and service buildings recently completed at 1150 West Washington Street.

The ceremonies will be held in the new buildings. Guests will include public officials, business and professional leaders of this community and representatives of transportation companies located in all parts of the United States.

Begun in 1932, at the depth of the depression, the modernization program planned to cost $9,000,000 and to require 10 years for completion, has been completed in six years at a cost of $8,000,000. Every department of the transportation system has been included in the program. Added riding comfort for the patron, speedier and more reliable schedules and improved routing has been the result.

The new shops buildings will add much to the efficiency of the system. Said to be the "most modern in the country", the structures cost $8,000,000. They will house all the maintenance and service operations on the 400 vehicles operated by Indianapolis Railways and the Peoples Motor Coach Company.—Pd. Adv.

PEOPLE AND PLACES

Hi Ho! everybody, and if it's hot in the city, how cool is it in the country?

And speaking of being hot, the other night Postmortem decided to drive out to Northern Beach and see if it is really cooler in the country. "Having a wonderful time" in the pool splashing and ducking each other were Betty (sun-burned Farber, Josh (Jack-knife) Fineberg, who we were told, ran out of gas one the way out (at least that's his story) Tevie (speed) Jacob, Doris Gunter and Lou Keiffer Jaeger. (Are they still going together) My, oh my . . .

Lucky! Johnnie Wolf won 20 golf balls in the slot machine at the caddy house at Broadmoor C. C. Good going, John. . . . news has it that Seymour Pinkus' 3rd cousin will soon marry Martha Raye—when are you leaving for Hollywood, Seymour? Larry Frommer who is attending summer school at I. U. can not seem to keep his affections constant. First it was a Southern darling, and then it was a cute something from Connersville, and now he has switched to a sorority sister of K. S. I hope you find the right one, Larry. . . . This off the record, but I think we have to score a hit for Ed. Rose. They tell me he's true to his little Adele Herwitz. . . . Well, I can't blame you, Ed, cause she's a swell gal. . . . Girls how about coming to the rescue of Phil and Nate Fogle? The story goes that they can't find anything to do and are fed up with it. Don't let it be said that two men about town like Phil and Nate should suffer that a way. Give it to 'em, girls. . . .

Lenny Rothschild (flourishing Franklin merchant) has been making frequent trips to Louisville . . . He tells us that they are strictly business—just between you and me, Lenny, is it business or monkey-business? . . . Seen making a round trip daily to the home of his granddaughter, is grandpop, Isaac Born. He says if you don't think she's the sweetest thing, just ask him. Help! Help! We hear Dot Rauh had a little too much water in her lungs the other day at B. C. C. and started to go down taking with her Lois Letzter. After several seconds, Monty rescued the "drowning" girls. Lois ended up with a torn suit and Dot a little bit excited . . . don't worry, Dot, we've all had that happen to us.

What's this we hear about Lenore Needleman and her man Freiberg? Fess up, Lenore. . . . Three cheers Dick Efromson. . . . rah! rah! rah! With a net score of 71, he made the first flight of the handicapped tournament at Broadmoor. . . . Alice Jane Rice can't understand why her wisdom tooth doesn't hurt anymore. . . . don't you remember, Alice, you had it pulled? yeah. . . .

Everybody certainly is glad to hear that you are out of the hospital and on the road to recovery, Walter Lichtenstein . . . and you, Eddie Mantell, what are you trying to do . . . scare the devil with accidents on the way home from the club on Sunday? You who must be living right . . . On Wednesday night, July 20, the young peoples' group of Youth Aliyah are giving a scavenger hunt for members and their friends. Lucille Borinstein and Burt Kohn are co-chairmen of the hunt, and you can bank on them throwing a swell affair, so we'll be seeing you there.

Overheard at the pool at the Broadmoor was Capt Montgomery trying to teach Harry Taylor's little 3 yr. old daughter how to swim. Monty who has such a sweet and clever way with the kids asked her if she wouldn't like to get in the water with him and learn how to swim like the rest of them. Little Taylor looked up at him and said, "Can't you swim either?" Well, how about it Monty? . . . Leaving Sat. for northern Michigan are Ed Cohn and Doug Brown who say they are going to spend a very quiet (?) vacation up there. I hope you're right boys. . . . Jack I. Kahn left the other day for Mackinac Island to attend the lawyer's convention. . . . Louise Jaeger and her mother are leaving for Chicago tomorrow to spend a week at the Edgewater Beach Hotel. How about me going along too Louise. . . . Sam Kroot has been complaining that while Florence and the baby are away he hasn't been able to eat two meals at the right time. Too bad Sam. . . . After spending many years at their home at 2937 Washington Boulevard, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bamberger have moved to their new residence at 510 E. 61st Street. Good luck to you. . . . The new catch phrase around town seems to be "When are you going to get married?" What is this. . . anyhow? . . . I'm surprised at you Jack Wormser. I thought you were a fair tennis player but when you let Tevie Jacobs beat you I take it all back. . . . You too can be an actor Abbey Schwartz and Helaine Sternberger now that you are members of the Pretenders Club. We'll be seeing you soon. . . .

Here, there and everywhere . . . Dancing in the moonlight at Broad Ripple Saturday night were Maury and Betty Rothbard . . . Sunday night Meyer and Sadie Cohen were seen enjoying the movies at the Circle . . . at the Lyric Saturday afternoon were Ruth Goldberg, who recently announced her engagement to Moe Sinofsky of Atlantic City, Janet Wohlfeld, Phyllis Maierson with a cute blonde fella from Newcastle . . . Norman Weissman, dressed in blue, dunking doughnuts in Thompson's Tuesday.

And so my friends. . . until Tiny Epstein puts the top down on his convertible, I'll be seeking you and I do, mean ah dew, and I due mean adieu.

MY LIFE

The Autobiography Of A Courageous Jewish Pioneer
By SOL LEVITAN

I regret that so many members of our race try to pretend that they are a different kind of Jew. Some join Gentile churches just to gain prestige. False pretenses such as these do not fool either Gentile or Jew, and will bring only disfavor upon the person who practices them. I see no reason why anyone should ever want to deny that he is a Jew. If we are proud of our Jewish ancestry, we can overcome many of the handicaps which the thoughtless members of our race place upon us. Our desire to succeed must be tempered with modesty, our instinct for business must be confined within strictly honest channels. Those of us who have a desire to show off must either abandon or outgrow this childish trait.

Whatever success we achieve, we must accept with modesty and humility. We must not brag about success or wealth. We must not over-dress. We must not be extravagant. We must not over-indulge in luxury. All these things cause prejudice against the people of our race. The true Jew is not a boaster; he does not make a showy display of his worldly goods. He dresses in good taste. He does not do things which are offensive both to Jew and Gentile. Most Jews dislike the unfavorable traits exhibited by the thoughtless members of our race even more than the Gentiles dislike them. But it is the lot of the Jew that all Jews must bear the penalty for the mistakes made by a few of our people. We must study the situation thoroughly and, if possible, overcome any traits which may arouse prejudice against people of our race.

When I was a boy I visited my relatives at Kennesburg, in East Prussia. As a boy I was very anxious to see the reformed temple as I had never been in one before. So one Friday night I went in, sat down, and somebody came and took my cap away. The organ was playing and a choir composed mostly of Gentile girls was singing the Hebrew melody. "En Calahano." Naturally, in later years when I attended the Yeshiva in Kovna, I told Rabbi Isserman, the head of the Seminary, a very pious Jew and who used to lecture the boys, of the incidents that had happened in Kennesburg—of having been in a reformed temple, having to take off my hat, listening to the organ playing, and to the choir of Gentile girls singing. He could hardly believe that there were such Jews who would violate the old Jewish traditions, and he told me that I had committed a sin, and in order to make peace with my creator he told me to fast every Thursday for ninety days.

In 1936 when I went to Florida for a convention, we stopped over in St. Louis, and so on Friday night I went into the reformed temple. There I heard the same thing, people praying without hats, the organ playing and the choir singing "En Calahano." That reminded me of the Temple I had been in over 62 years ago. At the close of the services I went up to the Rabbi and introduced myself. He had heard of me, and so took me into his private office and we talked for some time. I told him of my experience in that reformed temple over sixty years ago—of how Rabbi Isserman, who was the head of the Seminary I attended in later years, had made me fast every Thursday for 90 days because I had gone into the reformed Temple. How surprised I was when this young Rabbi told me that my old teacher in Europe, Rabbi Isserman, was his grandfather! I couldn't help but wonder what the old Rabbi would say today if he could see his grandson conducting services in a reformed Temple!

This same Rabbi Isserman, the grandson, made a speech before The Sunday Evening Club in Chicago on November 14, 1937 and said: "Only in a land of freedom and democracy is it possible for me to say that, as a Jew, I am proud of Jesus. Therein lies the beauty and grandeur of America—that I can stand here today in a service of worship and speak before Christians what I feel about Jesus. In these days of godless dictators, the church and synagogue cannot afford the luxury of quarreling. Jesus carried on in his life and teachings the prophetic heritage of the synagogue. Let church and synagogue interpret the life of Jesus as they will, but let them unite in the religion of Jesus. His religion was the faith in one God, a religion of love and justice, of peace and brotherhood, of noble prayer. It is the spiritual property and legacy of both Jew and Christian. Every Jew should be grateful to Jesus. If it had not been for Him, who knows what the fate of the God-idea of Israel would have been."

What would my teacher have said if he had heard his grandson say that?

It has often been said that the German Jews were independent and did not give any help to the Russian Jews. I want to correct this unfounded statement. I recall distinctly that when I was a young boy, hundreds of boys, who could not secure any work at home, were sent into Germany every year. These boys were from families who could not support their children, all large families with eight or nine children. Through the famous Rabbi Ohlswanger, who had contact with German Jewry, these boys were placed in Jewish homes. They were given room, board, and clothes by the German Jewish families and employed by them.

At that time the German Jews lived strictly according to the Jewish faith, in fact as much so as the Lithuanian or Russian Jews, and the families had no cause for worry that the religious training of their children would be neglected. Today the same Jewish boys who were brought from Lithuania have become German citizens, have fought in the army of Germany and carried out the traditions of Germany, and are suffering just as much as the Jews who are German by birth.

I feel it is my duty to tell you that the German Jews are entitled to all the assurance that would be given to Jews of any other country, regardless of the modern standards they have adopted from the country in which they live.

The Editor's Chair:

Lately, for some obscure reason, readers are beginning to take more advantage of the "Freedom of the Press" column of this paper to voice their views either on some subject or editorial appearing in our columns or on a matter of interest to Jews generally.

Whenever I receive a letter, I feel honored. People are really reading my paper. I guess I'll never get over the feeling of agreeable surprise it gives me when someone quotes something from this paper, or stops me to take issue with an editorial or article. The same is true about letters to the editor. I always read them with particular interest, and whenever possible print them in entirety. Of course some letters must be gone over carefully for wanton libel and statements not borne out by facts, but for the most part, readers are more kindly in their remarks than I am in my editorials.

If there ever was a criterion of a paper's standing in a community, it is its letter column. If a paper is considered too insignificant to warrant a controversy over its contents, then it receives very few, if any, letters. But if on the other hand, readers feel that a certain misconception must be corrected, a certain editorial taken issue with, then a paper has established itself as an institution in the community it serves.

I am not satisfied with the few letters that dribble in. I'd like to see so many every week that I'd have to devote an entire paper to letters alone. And if you don't mind they all don't have to be fault-finding, either.

Commonplace News For Hadassah

WITH little fanfare and with modesty almost to the point of reticence, Hadassah lets it be known that $222,500 of the $360,000 it set out to raise September 30 has already been raised.

The announcement of the near-completion of this remarkable task is released from Hadassah headquarters in the fifth paragraph of a well-written feature story about a little girl's gift of a dime to Eddie Cantor to swell the Aliyah fund. National offices, evidently elated by the results thus far, are not emphasizing the amount raised at present for fear of a lessening of activity with the goal so near.

The same news story carries the statement that Eddie Cantor, beloved comedian, has personally raised $87,000 and is now in England for the purpose of securing donations totalling an additional $100,000 from his English friends.

Were a men's organization to have raised an emergency fund over and above its regular quota with so much celerity, you would have read about it across the front page of every Anglo-Jewish paper, not to mention every daily paper, in the United States. So accomplished has Hadassah become in carrying out its announced plans, that it is almost commonplace news when they run up a sum of $225,000 in the short space of a few months.

The Jewish Advocate Names Itself

LET no one say that The Jewish Advocate of Boston is cowardly.

For when Rabbi Stephen S. Wise before the Z. O. A. convention in Detroit singled out one item which "has given me the only occasion for displeasure that has fallen to my lot in two years" and without naming the publication attributed this unhappiness to an editorial appearing in an Anglo-Jewish newspaper, most delegates were unaware of the supposedly-offending newspaper. But last week, The Jewish Advocate (see reprinted editorial below in "Current Comment" announced that the editorial had appeared in its columns.

Two Southern Jewish Papers Take Sides In B'nai B'rith's Decision to Discontinue Subventions to Hebrew Orphans Home At Atlanta.—Politics versus orphans. This is the title of an editorial which appeared in the Southern Israelite of June 3, and of which a reprint is being mailed to hundreds of residents of this area, and refers to the action of the recent Fifth District B'nai B'rith Convention held in Orlando which by a vote of ninety-one to two adopted the minority report of the Budget Committee which recommended that NO FUNDS be given to the Hebrew Orphans Home at Atlanta.

As one of the signatories of the minority report we resent rather strongly the asinine allegations of politics contained in this unwise editorial of our friend Stephen Schiffer.

We believe it high time we realize B'nai B'rith has a splendid field of work in its Hillel and Student activities, in its A. Z. A. work, in its Palestinian endeavors and more IMPORTANT TODAY, in its defense of Jewish rights and the liberty of American citizens through the work of its Anti-Defamation League, of greater value than contributing to philanthropies which do NOT NEED HELP NOW.

There is no room in the Fifth District for the ignoral of vital things simply because some gentleman, well intentioned perhaps, never-the-less, believe that because they have had a pet for years they must continue to devote their funds and their efforts to an institution which is SELF SUPPORTING, and adding thousands of dollars annually to its already huge endowment fund.

We sincerely believe the Home is doing a fine job; we further believe that there are thousands of dollars that could be saved in salaries and other expenses, if the effort were made. We believe that the institution should be supported by private endeavors within certain prescribed limits.

The Atlanta Orphans Home and the B'nai B'rith are too valuable, each in their respective fields of endeavor to become the subject of ill advised controversy. We do not propose to enter into such a controversy unless we are forced to it.

But let it be said and in terms that are unmistakable: "If B'nai B'rith is to exist simply because of its support of a hundred orphans and not otherwise; if everything worth-while in Jewish life is to become subservient to philanthropy, important as that may be; if B'nai B'rith offers nothing else than charity as its reason for existence; if B'nai B'rith has no reason to ask for members other than the $1000.00 asked for by the Orphans Home which was refused, then B'nai B'rith has no valid reason for existence.

We do not agree with this reasoning. Thank God, B'nai B'rith is fast becoming a greater and

The charge which caused Dr. Wise such hurt was that what with his duties as president of the American Jewish Congress and so many other active organizations, he necessarily was not able to devote all of his time to the administrative tasks attached to the office of presidency of the Z. O. A. This charge hurt Dr. Wise, showing he is much more thin-skinned than his hectic years as a controversial figure in American Jewish life would have led one to believe.

Be that as it may, The Jewish Advocate upheld the highest traditions of the press in naming itself as the paper so opprobriously offending.

more vital factor in everything worth-while in Jewish life; it is today a throbbing, pulsating movement in our everyday Jewish endeavors no matter what they may be.

"Politics versus Orphans?" What drivel and bosh.—The Jewish Floridian.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise's Statement That An Editorial In An Anglo-Jewish Paper Hurt Him More Than Anything Is Answered by That Paper, The Jewish Advocate of Boston.—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, retiring as president of the Zionist Organization of America, delivered an address at the Zionist convention in Detroit last week-end. In that address he made lengthy reference to an editorial which had appeared in The Jewish Advocate and which had stated that Rabbi Wise had been too busy to give close attention to Zionist administrative duties during the past year, and that the organization had been administered in his name.

"This editorial has given me the only occasion for displeasure that has fallen to my lot in two years," declared Rabbi Wise after branding both the above-mentioned charges false.

It was farthest from our mind to hurt the man. Whether one agrees or disagrees with his policies, there is no denying that Rabbi Stephen S. Wise is the boldest figure in American Jewish life, perhaps in the history of this country. We have stated our personal appreciation of his contributions to American Judaism, and have paid tribute to his leadership on sufficient occasions to make it unnecessary for us at this time once again to enter upon eulogy.

Nevertheless we submit that it is humanly impossible for one individual to direct the work of a body as large as the Zionist Organization, even if he devoted full time to the work, and particularly if he has as many varied and insistent outside interests as has the retiring leader. It is to be expected that any good administrative officer will delegate his authority to subordinates, and such delegation will come in exact proportion to the other interests which occupy him.

The Jewish Ledger of Hartford, Conn., Comments on the Divorce From New York.—The election of Rabbi Solomon Goldman to the Presidency of the Zionist Organization of America is a welcome sign of the break-up of New York Zionist provincialism. And while it was rumored that Dr. Goldman's election was favored by the headquarters office clique because of his residence in Chicago—we believe that they may rejoice too soon. Dr. Goldman is a dynamic, driving, indefatigable, resourceful leader and his election to the Presidency will mean new strength for the movement.

We salute the new President, and wish him well.

Freedom Of The Press

On The Schmeling Editorial

To The Editor:

Concerning your recent editorial on "how sporting the Germans were following the Schmeling-Louis encounter" suggest you read the Associated Press (an excellent authority) dispatches from Berlin after the fight . . .

One German newspaper (Uhr Blatt) declared Max had to fight three opponents, Louis, advancing age, and certain unfair machinations.

Why were the German broadcasts stopped when Schmeling went down? Why did they say that "it's terrible that punches like that are permitted", when according to the rules, the blow was a fair one? More than once did the cry of "foul" come from the Schmeling group. In his dressing room after the fight, Max himself announced that he had been fouled by a punch to the kidneys (see Times magazine of July 4).

The Berlin Boersen-Zeitung Am Mittag was one of the few journals which sportingly editorialized "We who for many years were proud and happy over Schmeling's victories must now show that we can be fair losers . . . the Fatherland will never forget his 14 years' record".

Between YOU AND ME

By PAUL A. PETERS

REUNION: Two lads who went through New York's City College and subsequently Cambridge's Harvard, together, will have a reunion next Fall. . . . When Prof. Morris Raphael Cohen is scheduled to lecture in philosophy at the Cambridge institution where Prof. Felix Frankfurter has long been a fixture in the law school. . . . The two noted scholars were roommates in their postgraduate days at Harvard. . . .

VISITORS: Olga Anhalzer, well-known painter whose canvases hang in many continental galleries, is in the United States on a visit with her husband, Bela Fisch. . . . The couple just returned from a business trip to Abyssinia. . . . Where Mr. Fisch, who represents an Italian commercial firm, took one of the finest collections of photographs of the natives this camera-conscious colyumist has ever set eyes on. . . . The collection will probably be published by one of the pix mags sooner or later, and will find its way to the walls of a gallery. . . . Unfortunately, the collection does not include pix of the Falashas, since they dwell in a section of the country Mr. Fisch did not visit. . . . But he discussed the Falashas with Italian officials, who told him the black Hebrews were the smartest natives in all Africa. . . .

PARTITION: S. S. Wise and B. G. Richards were among those attending a recent meeting of an interfaith committee on religious minorities. . . . The talk turned to the many sects within Christendom. . . . Whereupon a minister turned to Rabbi Wise, asked how many divisions there were in Judaism. After listing the varied groupings, S. S. quipped, "the Jews are divided into two parties, one which is for Stephen Wise and the other which is against him." . . . "Pretty large parties—both of them!" exclaimed B. G. Richards. . . . S. S. joined in the roar greeting the sally. . . .
